

Create Your Own Culture

Create a poster that shows your very own culture. Your end product is a poster you will present to the class. Your poster should include information on as many of the following cultural universals as possible:

- Family – what is the basic family structure?
- Education
- Folkways and Mores – what unwritten rules of behavior are present?
What are the customs and traditions?
- Laws – what are serious violations?
- Religion
- Political System – what type of government has been established?
- Economic System
- Language
- Science and Technology
- Sports
- Art, Literature, and Music

Name your culture. Include a map showing where your culture is located. It can be a real place, or a new island or continent. Be sure, however, that your cultural universals are consistent with the physical location and climate. (You wouldn't want the chief staple of your tropical island nation to be whale oil!)
